A new journal in a new era of cardiology

As the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Clinical Hypertension (JCH), I would like to congratulate professor Yaling Han, the Editor-in-Chief of Cardiology Discovery, on the start-up of this new cardiology journal and the publication of its inaugural issue at the beginning of 2021. As a Chinese cardiologist, I would also like to thank the Chinese Medical Association Publishing House (CMAPH) for launching this new journal among several English journals published by the leading medical publishing in China. I believe that this and other English journals from the CMAPH will make great contributions to the English literature of medicine in the future.

I would also congratulate the Chinese colleagues in the field of cardiology. The journal is in English and is therefore for the whole world. However, it will be a major platform for Chinese researchers to publish their landmark studies and to communicate their major findings with the outside world. China is experiencing fast development in almost all areas including innovation and invention in medicine. The Chinese cardiologists and researchers in related disciplines may fully utilize this new platform to promote their research and practice in the management of cardiovascular disease and risk in the most populous country of China.

The journal is born in a new era of the fast-changing world. China is increasingly investing in scientific research. Chinese researchers are increasingly contributing to scientific innovation and invention. This new journal will soon grow and play a part in scientific communications in cardiology. As a member of the editorial board of the journal, I cordially welcome all colleagues and friends worldwide to submit their research for publication in this new journal.

JCH has been successfully published for 20 years. If the learning experience is of any help, I would be extremely happy to share. The editorial office of JCH moved to Shanghai, China at the beginning of 2020. The JCH is looking forward to closely collaborating with this new cardiology journal in any aspect. Again, congratulations on the naissance of Cardiology Discovery!
